

Spotlight on Community Action Agencies

The Power of Storytelling

Storytelling transforms data into a memorable messages that inform. During MCAP's Roundtable on Storytelling, attendees learned various techniques to demonstrate organizational impact. The workshop was facilitated by Alizah Epstein of the Epstein Creative Group.

Baltimore City Community Action Partnership receives an award from the Mayor during Open House

Baltimore City Mayor, Catherine Pugh, City Council President, Bernard C. "Jack" Young, Councilman Robert Stokes, Sr., Maryland Community Action Partnership and others attended Baltimore City Community Action Partnership's Open House celebration on Sept. 11, 2018.

The new site located in East Baltimore serves as the Administrative Office, The Office of Home Energy Programs-Operations Division and the Eastern Community Action Center.

During the open house, Lori Cunningham, Director was presented with a Certificate of Recognition of the agency's work in Baltimore City.

This new location will help the agency reach additional clients and work towards their mission to reduce poverty by offering opportunities for low-income households through education, financial empowerment, housing and energy services, food resources and capacity building.

Community Assistance Network, Inc. (CAN) Partners with Aramark at M&T Bank Stadium To Fundraise The Fun Way.

Community Assistance Network is partnering to make a difference. Agency volunteers will work at the M&T Bank Stadium at a designated concession stand during the football season to fundraise. Fundraise the Fun Way allows nonprofit groups to be a part of the game day experience, while making money for their agency.

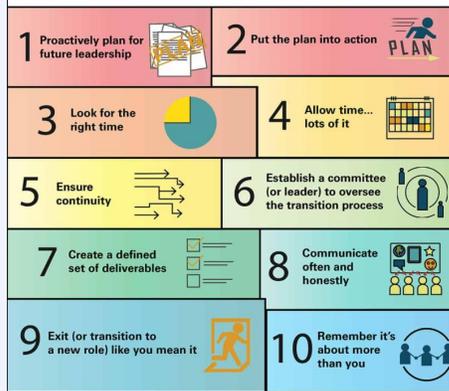

Volunteers are needed to work the concession stand for each home game. Interested parties should contact Phyllis at pjohnson@canconnects.org or Jessica at jblockington@canconnects.org.

Graceful Exit: Succession Planning for High-Performing CEOs

More than a decade ago, Bridgespan Group Chairman and Co-Founder Tom Tierney predicted a nonprofit leadership deficit due to sector growth and baby boomer retirements.

10 Lessons for CEO Succession Planning

One of the consequences of this trend is an increase in CEO successions—an often-dreaded process. It's also a process that many organizations aren't prepared to address.

In its 2017 National Index of Nonprofit Board Practices, BoardSource found that only 27% of nonprofit boards have a written executive leadership succession plan in place. But it doesn't have to be this way.

We can't claim to have all the answers, but lessons from members of the Leap Ambassadors Community and other thought leaders provide some helpful guideposts for a successful, planned transition.

Material Hardship among Nonelderly Adults and Their Families in 2017

Measuring a family's ability to meet basic needs can provide a broader understanding of well-being than income-based poverty indicators. Yet, policymakers and researchers have few tools to monitor trends in material hardship as the economy evolves and new policies take effect.

To fill this gap, the Urban Institute launched the Well-Being and Basic Needs Survey (WBNS) in December 2017 to track individual and family well-being at a time when the economy is improving but the safety net may be changing significantly.

In this report, they use WBNS data to provide baseline estimates of the share of nonelderly adults who experienced material hardship in 2017, focusing on four critical areas: housing, utilities, food, and health care.

The State of Homelessness

The State of Homelessness in America charts progress in ending homelessness in the United States. Using the most recently available national data, it is intended to serve as a reference for policymakers, journalists, advocates, and the public on trends in homelessness, homeless assistance, and at-risk populations at the national and state levels.
