

The Pursuit of Fairness:
Fighting for What's Right in a World That's So Wrong

Alan L. Jennings

Testimonials

Regardless of your political opinions, you must respect and admire Alan Jennings' perseverance and determination to help our neighborhood in need. He has proven countless times that reasonable people, despite their differences, can find ways to make our world a better place.

Charlie Dent

CNN Commentator and Former US Representative (R-PA)

Consider every allegory for man facing the impossible - from Theseus slaying the Minotaur to David overcoming Goliath - and this is what you get in Alan Jennings' story. As a newspaper editor whose career paralleled his, I was again and again inspired as I watched Alan beat the odds for the benefit of the underprivileged. Now, thankfully, this brutally honest, humorous, deadly serious, self-revealing, educational and enlightening story is being told to challenge and inspire many readers to make the world a better place.

David M. Erdman

Former editor-in-chief, The Morning Call, Allentown, PA

Finally, a book from the front lines in the War on Poverty! Alan Jennings has provided a timely reminder to all of us that, although the fight for economic and social justice is never easy or quick, ultimately it is a fight that our nation must wage.

Alan's remarkable account of the battles at the local level is continuing proof that one determined individual can make a remarkable difference in the lives of individuals, the communities in which they live, and, ultimately, their state and our nation.

David Bradley

Executive Director, National Community Action Foundation

The world changes when people of pure hearts and deep political understandings are willing to confront those rich and powerful who are unwilling to allow others to experience economic and social progress. Alan Jennings is the American version of the Chinese activist who stood alone in front of that tank in Tiananmen Square in China. The world needs more leaders who are willing to stand in the face of great power and demand fairness and equality.

John Taylor

President and CEO, National Community Investment Coalition